

Dear Scarlett,

I am out of town on a trip to Scotland with my gran. I went to see some men in skirts but Gran said the skirts are kilts. One man had a scarf on too. I think it was too cool for a skirt.

We went for a brisk jog at dusk, as it helps Gran to sleep. She had a trip and fell, so we had to go to the doctors for a scan. The doctor said there was a risk of disc problems in her back, so Gran had to go to bed.

At the end of the week, Gran felt much better, so we went to a river. I can now skim rocks across the river. It is a good skill to have. I will skim rocks with you when I am back home.
